Interpreting Details
Maupassant's descriptions are filled with details that help the reader see and understand the characters and setting. Interpreting what these details mean will help you draw conclusions about what the story means. Use the three cluster diagrams below to organize descriptive details.

Follow Up: With a classmate, compare the cluster diagrams. How would you describe the attitude of the other peasants toward Maître Hauchecome's suspected misbehavior? What details give you this impression?

Characterization
Methods writers use to develop a character include:

- the character's own speech, thoughts, feelings, or actions
- another character's speech, thoughts, feelings, or actions
- direct description from the narrator about the character

Work with a group of classmates to identify four details in the story that reveal aspects of Maitre Hauchecome's character. Try to find an example of each method. Use the chart below to identify the characterization method that Maupassant used for each detail, and what that detail reveals about the character.
